Note: exhibitions follow socially engaged projects

LOUDER THAN WORDS 2013-present

LOUDER THAN WORDS (LTW) is a cross-cultural, intergenerational art collective that targets sexual assault, domestic violence, animal liberation, LGBTQ equality, and jail reform. They recruit art in the service of public address and social action while examining the ways misogyny and capitalism endanger women and the disenfranchised. Their projects engage outdoor projection, mobile billboards, round-table workshops, video, and photography. LTW strives to ignite civic dialogue, unravel obstacles, reorder entrenched cultural gridlock, and develop “languages of critique and possibility.” Cofounded with Neda Moridpour.

LOUDER THAN WORDS projects:

LIBERATING WATERMELON, web and national distribution project, 2023-present

A website, Instagram, and street project responding to Israeli and U.S. military actions in Palestine, marking the fifth war on Gaza since 2008. Protest posters are distributed free-of-charge to organizations and activists, both in person and through a click-to-print website.

ETHICS AND ANIMALS, nationwide, 2022-present

A collaboration with VINE SANCTUARY, an LGBTQ-led farmed animal sanctuary that works for social and environmental justice as well as for animal liberation. Our first project, Cow's Milk is for Calves is a nationwide campaign addressing the dairy industry. Other related works address the myth of “cage-free” and “free-range” eggs as well as a campaign to end animal testing.

VEHICLE FOR CHANGE (VFC), Los Angeles County, CA, 2019-2020

In collaboration with Reform LA Jails, Dignity and Power Now and Patrisse Cullors. VFC converted a truck into a mobile billboard and resource center that distributed voter information about the Reform Jails and Community Reinvestment 2020 county-wide ballot initiative. The measure passed overwhelmingly and resulted in the Sheriff's Department Civilian Oversight Commission being granted subpoena and power to independently investigate misconduct and develop alternatives to incarceration.

WOMEN ON THE MOVE (WOM), Boston, Cleveland, San Pedro, Los Angeles, 2017-19

WOMEN ON THE MOVE transforms a 26-ft truck into a mobile billboard and a multi-media resource center to aid in the prevention of domestic violence and sexual assault. WOM highlights challenges faced by those who fear reporting due to retaliation, fraught relationships with law enforcement, stigma, or fear of detention and deportation. In collaboration with local agencies, high schools, and advocates, the center offers workshops on rape culture. In addition to organized events, volunteers engage pedestrians in conversation and distribute free artist-designed posters. Funded through Kickstarter.

FOR FREEDOMS TOWN HALL, SMFA at Tufts, Boston, MA 2018

Town Hall addressing coercive abuses used to establish power and exert control: sexual assault, domestic violence, and sexual harassment. What are the particular challenges faced by women whose experiences are marginalized? How can survivors gain access to justice and support for the wrongdoing they've endured? How can we support workers in low-wage industries where financial instability makes them vulnerable to violence and exploitation? In collaboration with For Freedoms.

CAN YOU SEE IT NOW?, University of Massachusetts Lowell and Glendale Community College, Glendale, CA, 2016

The project engages art, education, city policy, and activism to address Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault. It includes a gallery exhibition, nomadic seminars, art-making and educational workshops, and performances. The exhibit and workshops engage survivors, faculty, and students, while the nomadic seminar serves as an incubation laboratory for advocates, educators and civic leaders.

HALF THE SKY: Intersections in Social Practice, Artist Exchange, Shenyang, China, 2014

An interactive installation utilizing video projection, silkscreen, photography, and engaged dialogue. The project focuses on the devastating pandemic of gender-based violence and aims to provide experiences and information that will contribute to the further empowerment of women, while simultaneously inviting men to lead by example.

DEMIM DAY, There is No Excuse and Never an Invitation to Rape, Venice and Los Angeles, CA, 2014

Public projections in collaboration with Peace Over Violence. Denim Day, developed in 1999, was triggered by a ruling by the Italian Supreme Court where a rape conviction was overturned because the justices felt that because the victim was wearing tight jeans she must have helped her rapist remove her jeans, thereby implying consent. In solidarity, women in Parliament protested by wearing jeans to work.

QUOTE UNQUOTE, 2012-2014

A series of posters addressing the current "war on women." The nucleus of the project is a national outreach campaign soliciting quotations. Women were invited to participate by submitting quotes by women that were significant to their experience as women living in the U.S. Posters sent to Congress.

LEAD ARTIST, "I CAN WE CAN" A Collaboration with A Window Between Worlds, Venice, CA, 2013

A series of outdoor projections with a companion postcard to strengthen, connect and expand the community of individuals united to end Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault (DVSA.) A Window Between Worlds is a non-profit that utilizes art as a tool to help end DVSA.

THINK AGAIN (1997-2012)

THINK AGAIN expects something political from art and uses images to challenge indifference. Their work — mobile billboards, outdoor projections, guerilla interventions, digital murals, and viral poster campaigns — links the global to the local and aims to activate civic dialogue. Their projects explore queer liberation, economic inequality, immigration “reform”, gentrification, displacement, and gender parity. THINK AGAIN privileges face-to-face interaction and dispenses all of its printed matter free-of-charge through grassroots organizations, art spaces, academic institutions, and online. Cofounded with David John Attyah.

THINK AGAIN projects:

Actions Speak, 2008-2010

Commissioned by the Worcester Art Museum, Actions Speak is a multi-media project examining political brutality and public policy, and reconsiders social problems like HIV/AIDS and violence against women. It features a 17 x 67-foot interior wall mural and a outdoor projection. The project is the first to utilize both the Museum’s interior and exterior space, promoting dialogue between art and public response, between global reality and local action.

Hello/Hola, 2002-2006-2012

This postcard, installation and mobile billboard links the rape, sexualized violence, and murder of over three hundred unidentified women of Ciudad Juarez, Mexico to the socio-economic effects of NAFTA and intergovernmental relations between the US and Mexico.

Salt In The Wound (The NAFTA Effect), 2006-2007

A 3-channel video and series of public projections in Los Angeles and Boston addressing how “free trade” insidiously reshapes lives on both sides of the border. The project originated in collaboration with Outpost for Contemporary Art.

Protestgraphics, 2001-2004

One of the first websites to respond to 9/11, U.S. military action in Iraq, violence against Arab and Muslim American’s and the “war on terrorism.” 500 sets of posters were distributed free-of charge to organizations and activists internationally as well as via a click-to-print website.

CIA.TV, 2001-2003

Mobile billboard and web debate about the increasingly blurry lines between news and entertainment.

Popping the Question, 2000-2002

A caravan of mobile billboards circulated throughout San Francisco bringing the current debates about marriage and family to the San Francisco Court House, and Boston, New York and San Francisco.

White Blight, 1999-2000

Poster campaign addressing gentrification and economic inequality. Los Angeles, San Francisco and Boston.

Economic Boom For Whom?, Boston, MA, 1999

Billboard and poster campaign addressing economic inequality, gentrification, and the minimum wage.

The AIDS Crisis Is Not Over (Redux), 1997

Newspaper stand intervention in Boston on World AIDS Day calling attention to the AIDS crisis
